Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

Screw the damned corporations. Stop screwing the people. Stop selling your vote like a common whore to highest bidder like the rest of the prostitutes in the cathouse on the Potomac.

My tax burden already consumes more than half of my income. I certainly do not wish to pay more of money into taxes so I can enrich the same corporations who think so little of me that they've relocated their plants and jobs to some foreign country.

Perhaps you can impose your USF tax on the people of India who seem to handle most of corporate telephone calls now, anyway.

In any case, I do not want, wish or consent to pay more for my telephone service! I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair!

I use my wireless phone for safety, security and convenience. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Alfred Adask
